

Photosynthesis is the process by which green plants make food using sunlight.

Chlorophyll is the green pigment in leaves that absorbs sunlight.

Stomata are tiny pores on a leaf that let gases move in and out.

The stem carries water from the roots to the leaves.

Roots are the part of a plant that absorb water from the soil.

A seedling is a young plant that grows from a seed.

Evaporation is the change of water into vapour when it is heated.

Condensation is the change of vapour back into liquid water.